| | 0. | A great example of brand positioning is Disney. With movies, T.V. shows, theme parks, colouring | |
| | | books, and baby clothing (to name only five of its many products). One successful brand extension | |
| | | is the Disney English-language training centre. Though less ingrained in popular culture than other | |
| | | Disney products, this extension has been incredibly successful in China. It is especially important to | |
| | | highlight because as an international brand, it faced even more obstacles than other extensions by | |
| | | navigating a vastly different culture and an audience with an entirely different set of values. After | |
| | | identifying an international opportunity, Disney leveraged its unique strengths, like its unparalleled | |
| | | customer experience and focus on entertaining children, to break into an incredibly lucrative niche | |
| | | in China. Disney English, centres for teaching young children the English language, opened in | |
| | | Shanghai in 2008, according to McKinsey & Company, simultaneous with the development of the | |
| | | city's Disneyland park. Disney English is now in more than nine cities in China, with more than 30 | |
| | | locations. Further, the extension is helping the main Disney brand to flourish in a country that is not | |
| | | as familiar with its trademark "magic." As McKinsey & Company's article notes, "In a country | |
| | | where Disney's films and merchandising have yet to establish a broad market presence, using | |
| | | language learning to attract small children and their families looks like a great entry point to the | |
| | | world's biggest market and a sound investment in nurturing a future consumer base for Disney | |
| | | products." In this way, the extension capitalizes on both leverage and logic, bringing value to both | |
| | | consumers and the main brand in several ways. | |
